"... a state authority is entitled to demand respect and protection only when it meets the interests of a people, or at least does not harm them. There can be no such thing as state authority as an end in itself, for, if there were, every tyranny in this world would be unassailable and sacred. If, by the instrument of governmental power, a nationality is led toward its destruction, then rebellion is not only the right of every member of such a people - it is his duty. "
>"In general it should not be forgotten that the highest aim of human existence is not the preservation of a state, let alone a government, but the preservation of the species. And if the species itself is in danger of being oppressed or utterly eliminated, the question of legality is reduced to a subordinate role. Then, even if the methods of the ruling power are alleged to be legal a thousand times over, nonetheless the oppressed people's instinct of self-preservation remains the loftiest justification of their struggle with every weapon. This. It is likely him, but they want to strengthen the narrative.

1: He just walked in and out.
2: Umbrella ??? Either to signal to cops not to shoot or to hide from cameras.
3: Black clothing too high quality.
4: Tall, which gives him a confident stride.
5: Not a disgusting freak wearing a bra on the outside, obviously male, rather than questionable.
Some Antifa here can probably see other differences.

I want to know why though. What does it serve to have this happen?

He actually might be, yes. I think the reason why, however, is that /pol/ has gotten a couple things wrong about this situation. Including posting the picture of a guy in a "Make America White Again" maga hat, and a picture of the cop who killed the nignog, george - when they're not the same person at all. I think social media outlets are being skeptical and are waiting to post information. They're probably waiting for US to prove it and make the connection so they can steal the credit for our work and have something to report on.

All part of the plan:

1. Get a case that can rile people up;
2. Pump on the media and tell the BLM drones to start going wild;
3. Get agents to make sure the riots actually go down and the niggers don't pussy out or get a second of rationality;
4. Get a few agents to do this in the most conspicuous and retarded way possible, maybe have another agent there to record it just to make sure;
5. Upload it and make it go viral, make sure the guys face is in the video and he is white;
6. Give it some steam and then "reveal" his identity as a cop;
7. Now the protesters are even more distrustful of cops and more hostile.

Now, what they want with this... It is of course something related to police, either a justice system overhaul, police overhaul, maybe gun control. Of course, after several cops are murdered, cities destroyed, and much more.
You can expect more "police officer provocateur caught" news soon, and someone "coming forward confessing causing the riots". All of them white, of course. And more riots, and more looting, and a hot take proposition to change police that normally would be considered asinine, but now will be "just what America needs".

>1: He just walked in and out.
This would be standard. If your goal is to start shit, you should never stay to clean up. You just give it the first go, wait for mob mentality to kick in, and bolt. By the time they start picking up the trash no one will know how it started.
>2.Umbrella ??? Either to signal to cops not to shoot or to hide from cameras.
Maybe. My guess it was made to make him visible for onlookers. The umbrella would make sense if he was being watched from above, but there would be no point to that. If anything you'd want another 2 or 3 agents on the ground near him, otherwise you can't extract the guy, and I don't think just opening fire is a choice here.
So the point of the umbrella is to make him stand out. He is the literal opposite of the grey man. Everything about him screams "look at me, am fucking shit up". They planned for him to be seen, recorded and uploaded.

You don't need that much emotion if he just wants to have the crowd riot. He only smashed a few windows and they burned the place down, so it really is that easy. The crowd already is full of emotion, you just need to give them a Target and break a few rules to make them slightly more comfortable with escalating the violence.

Still, I don't think rioting was his point. Maybe his secondary goal at best. His true goal was to be seeing causing the riot. >>259219842 another odd thing is that he used a fake $20... the workers waited a few minutes to call the police, how fast would the police respond to some bullshit fake $20? immediately? Then they arrive they were able to point him out right away from the inside?

then that one fake 30 turned into multiple cop cars? In one of these muslim local shops they'd probably approach that dude with the fake 20 or go out the store looking for him...something is fiishy

They don't want to appear as the violent thugs that they are.

But if you take a look at what they say, it's clear. They always talk about "smashing the fash" and hitting people. They bring bike locks and metal pipes to beat people up.

Their stickers, posters and advertisements all talk about smashing something aswell. They have fists as their symbol and mask themselves. Of course they're going to be violent.

Not antifa because nobody fucking lives here, there's barely organizations let alone leftist organizations, but this is definitely an established tactic of police. The businesses do have a claim but they won't take it to the city if they can hold enough rioters accountable instead, because then they won't have to fight any actual resources. Talking about Autozone and Target here, the local businesses that got looted will likely not betray their communities like that.

For sure a cop, he moves with a purpose, the getup SCREAMS spook, and he is in and out. Black dude even tries to stop him and he bangs out another window then gets away before any attention is given to him.

The most obvious thing about it is that he stuck out. He was being watched by his uniformed buddies and if any protesters went out and grabbed him they would be able to jump in quick before they outed him.
